

ARMAGEDDON

TOP: Landing on the surface of an asteroid that is on a trajectory collision course with earth, Colonel William Sharp (William Fichtner) and a team of deep core oil drillers, prepare to plant nuclear explosives to blow the solid mass to smithereens, in Touchstone Pictures' action film "Armageddon," from producer Jerry Bruckheimer. BELOW: The world's foremost deep core oil driller Harry S. Stamper (Bruce Willis, left) commands a roughneck crew including A.J. Frost (Ben Affleck, right). (Right) Meteorites pummel the earth, but are merely an ominous sign of the imminent destruction that will be caused by an asteroid the size of Texas if it smashes into the earth. Gale Anne Hurd and director Michael Bay also produce. Buena Vista Pictures distributes.
