Ending Child Sexual Exploitation in Texas: Progress and Hope

Governor Abbott’s Child Sex Trafficking Team (CSTT) was created by the 84th Legislature (2015) to coordinate a holistic response to child sex trafficking in Texas. CSTT is a division within the Public Safety Office and its mission is to build sustainable capacity, enhance expertise, promote policies, and leverage collaborations to:

- Protect children and youth by building their awareness of and resilience to all types of exploitation and by curbing demand for commercial sex;
- Recognize exploitation by raising public awareness and implementing screening tools to identify potential victims;
- Recover victims with protective and empowering collaborative multi-disciplinary responses and specialized advocates/case managers;
- Support healing of survivors through a variety of trauma-informed and responsive services and supports; and
- Bring justice for survivors by supporting investigations and prosecutions of exploiters and also by empowering survivors to achieve freedom from harms caused by exploitation.

PROTECT: Child sex trafficking is not limited to any race, ethnicity, socioeconomic status, or zip code. Traffickers prey upon vulnerability, and children and youth are inherently vulnerable. Sadly, these exploiters can often be the very people our children trust – friends, romantic partners, family members, teachers, and others. CSTT is implementing the following key prevention strategies: providing age appropriate, research-based prevention education to high-risk youth; partnering with the Texas Education Agency to implement required school-based prevention education for educators and children; funding programs that provide healthy connections and other protective factors for vulnerable youth, like Court Appointed Special Advocates, and reducing demand for exploitation by increasing efforts to deter and prosecute buyers, as well as by educating youth and young men about the harms of commercial sex so that they do not become consumers.

CSTT partners with programs to increase the availability of prevention education programs across the state. Examples include:

- R.E.A.L. Friends Don’t: This campaign equips parents to talk with their kids about online safety. CSTT is partnering with the McCain Institute, the First Lady of Texas Cecilia Abbott, Outdoor Advertising Association of Texas, Univision and a variety of local stakeholders to bring this critical information to parents across Texas.

- PROTECT: 3Strands Global Foundation provides schools and organizations with online training modules to help better identify and respond to human trafficking. Participants also have access to age-appropriate, trauma-informed prevention curriculum for students.

- Love146: Not a #Number is an interactive, five-module prevention curriculum designed to protect youth from exploitation through information, critical thinking, and skill development.

RECOGNIZE: Victims of sex trafficking are often hiding in plain sight due to fear or shame and many do not even realize they are being victimized for a variety of reasons. CSTT works to educate the public about the indicators of trafficking and continues to promote and implement the Commercial Sexual Exploitation Identification Tool (CSE-IT), a research-based screening tool that improves early identification of commercially sexually exploited youth (CSEY) up to age 25. The CSE-IT is currently being used by hundreds of child-serving professionals to identify likely victims. Between 2016 and 2021, over 59,000 screenings of youth have been completed with 12.1% scored as “Clear Concern”, the highest probability for having experienced commercial sexual exploitation. Youth who score with clear concern are presumed victims and eligible for a wide array of grant funded services, including a full needs assessment, to start the healing process.

CSE-IT Results 2016-2021:

Over 7,200 Texas youth were likely victims.

First Lady Cecilia Abbott, CSTT, the Department of Family & Protective Services, and a variety of faith leaders across the state collaborate to raise awareness and inspire action to end human trafficking. RECOVER: CSTT has worked to build collaborative and coordinated responses for exploited youth. Key elements include Care Coordination and specially trained CSEY Advocates. CSTT partnered with the Children’s Advocacy Centers of Texas and the Texas Department of Family and Protective Services to develop multi-disciplinary Care Coordination teams to staff cases of survivors and ensure effective victim-centered care while supporting the investigation and prosecution of exploiters. CSEY Advocates respond to calls from first responders and others to provide crisis intervention, ongoing case management, and a healthy, supportive long-term relationship for survivors. These advocates work under a set of minimum standards and best practices developed by CSTT and Praesidium.

CSTT also recognizes that, for survivors, justice means autonomy and empowerment. CSTT worked with the Board of Pardons and Paroles to develop and implement a clemency process for survivors forced to commit crimes by their abusers. CSTT also supports and relies on the expertise of the Human Trafficking Survivor Leadership Council in making policy and programmatic decisions. Lastly, CSTT partners with various agencies, including the Texas Workforce Commission, to ensure survivors are economically empowered to move beyond surviving to thriving.

CSTT’s 5 Regional Advisors work with public and private partners to help communities build their continuum of care for survivors and support their prevention, awareness, and justice activities. They provide training on human trafficking, training on the CSE-IT screening tool, strategy sessions with local stakeholders to identify and fill gaps in the continuum of care, and facilitation of Care Coordination development in conjunction with Children’s Advocacy Centers.

BRING JUSTICE: Law enforcement and prosecutors need the appropriate training and tools to effectively investigate and prosecute child exploitation and human trafficking cases. While justice is pursued, it is critical to maintain a victim-centered and trauma-informed response to also ensure the survivor’s needs are met. CSTT works to bring justice for victims by providing funding and training to criminal justice partners, including:

Partnering with Collective Liberty to provide the Human Trafficking Fusion Center to investigators and prosecutors in Texas. The Center provides innovative analytical tools that streamline and enhance investigations and prosecutions. It also provides expert and hands-on training and technical assistance in best practices, including trauma-informed responses to victims.

BUILDING EXPERTISE: CSTT offers information resources to enhance expertise and promote research-based programs and practices that prevent child sexual exploitation, help survivors heal and thrive, and bring exploiters to justice:

• A webinar series addressing trends, lessons learned, and promising practices. Visit our recorded webinars archive and sign up for upcoming webinars.

• Curated articles and relevant research from peer-reviewed journals supporting CSTT’s five overarching goals: protect, recognize, recover, support healing, and bring justice.

• CSTT also funds research on child sex trafficking and evaluations of innovative anti-trafficking programs.

• CSTT facilitates regional interdisciplinary academic collaborations which collect, analyze, and disseminate research to help drive policy and practice to end the commercial sexual exploitation of youth.

Lighthouse is partnering with Allies Against Slavery to integrate the CSE-IT screening tool within Lighthouse, a first-of-its-kind software tool that enables users to complete screenings easily and securely online and access and analyze their CSE-IT data at any time. Lighthouse also aggregates statewide data, trends, and insights about human trafficking. The platform provides insights on what human trafficking looks like in Texas as well as the impact of efforts and investments.
